Website address:

Explain: Apple qualifies for the FCC's "de minimis" exception because it did not offer more than two handset models at any point during the reporting period. Nonetheless, Apple maintains accessibility websites for iPhone 4 at <http://www.apple.com/iphone/features/accessibility.html> and for iPhone 3GS at <http://www.apple.com/accessibility/>, which describe iPhone accessibility features and solutions for those with hearing disabilities. Apple's website includes an email address/link (accessibility@apple.com) which allows customers to provide Apple with feedback, comments or questions regarding accessibility products or solutions offered by Apple. Apple also makes iPhone 4 HAC rating information available on its website at <http://www.apple.com/iphone/specs.html>.

Consumer Outreach

Describe consumer outreach efforts in the past 12 months: Apple maintains an accessibility website at <http://www.apple.com/accessibility/>. In addition, many iPhone accessibility features that were introduced or enhanced in the past 12 months are highlighted on iPhone 4's accessibility page at <http://www.apple.com/iphone/features/accessibility.html>. Apple's online materials describe iPhone accessibility features and solutions for those with hearing disabilities, including (i) iPhone 4 support for telecoil coupling and FaceTime video calls and (ii) iPhone 4 and iPhone 3GS support for closed captioning, instant messaging (IM) chat, SMS chat, audible, visible and vibrating alerts, downloadable and assignable ringtones, visual voicemail, and intelligent QWERTY keyboard with predictive text, hearing aid-compatible induction ear loops, TTY, and (with iOS 4) wireless braille displays. Apple has also made iPhone 4 HAC rating information available on its website at <http://www.apple.com/iphone/specs.html>.

Apple's website includes an email address/link (accessibility@apple.com) which allows customers to provide Apple with feedback, comments or questions regarding accessibility products or solutions offered by Apple.

Hearing Aid Testing

How many handset models were tested for hearing aid compatibility during the reporting period? 1

Report Remarks

"De Minimis Exception": Apple qualifies for the FCC's "de minimis" exception because it did not offer more than two handset models at any point during the reporting period. Apple offered the iPhone 3G (A1241) from 07/09 – 06/10, but stopped offering this model prior to the introduction of the iPhone 4. The FCC Hearing Aid Compatibility Status Report Form currently permits manufacturers who answer "no" to the first de minimis exception question to enter technical information for a maximum of two handsets. However, technical information for the iPhone 3G is available in Apple's previous status report dated July 15, 2009.

"Hearing Aid Testing": Apple tested the iPhone 4 (A1332) during the reporting period, and tested the iPhone 3GS

(A1303) in the prior reporting period ending on June 30, 2009.

"Wi-Fi Interface": The iPhone 4's FaceTime feature enables video calling between iPhone 4 users over the Wi-Fi interface, with audio delivered via the iPhone's speakerphone or a headset (wired or Bluetooth); however, voice operations over the Wi-Fi interface that permit the iPhone receiver to be held to the ear require the use of third party applications.
